

INTERNATIONAL FIELDWORK PROJECT MANAGER
for a small firm with big impact

Datu Research is seeking a full-time Project Manager to become an integral part of our team!

Datu is a high-energy consulting firm that provides the right data to the leading foundations, NGOs and governments that are working to solve humanity's most important challenges.

On a 6-month contract, you will help lead a large international project that includes field research in Latin America, India, Africa, and Southeast Asia.

You get to:

- Do 4-6 weeks of field work in Indonesia, Philippines, and Papua New Guinea
- Help coordinate logistics and communication for all project geographies
- Analyze qualitative data
- Work with the team to develop and document findings

You hold:

- A Master's degree or higher in economics, agriculture, public health, environmental science, international development, rural sociology, or a related field

You have experience in these 5 Must-Have areas:

- Managing teams
- Performing fieldwork in developing countries
- Doing program monitoring and evaluation
- Conducting interviews and focus groups
- Coding data for qualitative analysis

Better yet, you even:

- Have lived and worked in Southeast Asia

We have:

- A team that works hard together and supports each other
- Transparency and joint decision making
- Health and retirement benefits

Location: Durham, NC
Onsite with our Durham team

Start date: July 17, 2017

Please send resume and cover letter to
Marcy Lowe, CEO:
mlowe@daturesearch.com

If this isn't the job for you, you might have a friend who is a perfect fit. If so, please send them this announcement. Thanks!